Buckle Up

During the first three months of its compulsory safety seat belt law deaths and injuries to drivers and front seat passengers declined by a dramatic 20 per cent in Victoria, Australia, the first governmental subdivision to require this safety practice.

There's no sense in waiting until the federal government requires either passive-restraint systems or starter interlocks that prevent the car from starting until the front belts are fastened to insist on safety belt use at state levels, Ford Motor Company President Lee A. Iacocca declares.

As unpopular as mandatory seat belt use may be, Iacocca adds, the life-saving and injury-preventing potential makes it well worth pushing for this type of law in all states.

Present estimates are that the use of seat belts is saving 3,500 lives a year and that if lap belts were used universally, instead of the estimated 40 per cent use at present, 12,000 more lives would be saved.

Those are cold figures, and ones that the Alabama Legislature should consider strongly when it meets again. Many of those 12,000 lives could be Alabamians. — Birmingham (Ala.) News

Hanoi Reckoned Coolly on Detected Weaknesses

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

AP Special Correspondent
The successes of the North Vietnamese offensive suggest that Hanoi has understood its enemies better than South Vietnam's leaders or Americans understood the North Vietnamese.

Hanoi reckoned coolly on taking advantage of weaknesses it detected on the other side.

The North Vietnamese had read antiwar protests in the United States as an enormously important factor in their favor, and as long as five years ago were planning to capitalize on such developments. For a long time Hanoi was telegraphing its punches, but perhaps Saigon wasn't listening or preferred to dismiss it all as propaganda.

The current offensive would have been impossible without Soviet supplies. There is good reason to believe that Soviet help was increased substantially even after agreement was announced in October for President Nixon to visit Moscow in May.

Last January, Hanoi began talking again about a "new situation." Lt. Gen. Song Hao, chief of the North Vietnamese army's political department, wrote that the new situation lay in achievement of "a victorious offensive position." North Vietnam, he said, "is faced with a new situation with many advantages and bright prospects." He saw new "tests of strength" directly ahead.

Hanoi let the period of Nixon's visit to Red China come and go without striking, and South Vietnam breathed easier. Then, toward the end of March, Hanoi welcomed a delegation from Moscow, a high-powered military group headed by the deputy defense minister. It's makeup fitted in with reports from diplomatic sources that the Russians had promised much more hardware to Hanoi.

At the same period, Hanoi was host to the Soviet ministers of merchant shipping and communications. The shipping minister announced that 340 Soviet ships had called at North Vietnamese ports in 1971 and delivered a million tons of cargo. That, he said, would increase in 1972.

Pryor in Ft. Smith

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — Rep. David Pryor, one of three Democrats opposing the reelection bid of Sen. John I. McClellan, told an informal gathering of campaign supporters here Thursday night that the people of Arkansas cannot live by public works alone.

Pryor repeated his charge that only 5 per cent of the Arkansas House of Representatives would be just as dedicated as a statewide office-holder as he had been as a state senator.

He said his father was pastor of a church and neither he nor his father was a gambler.

package."

It is this package, says Lang, that often can be exported in the form of manufacturing licenses or joint venture arrangements. He asks: Why shouldn't the same techniques that worked domestically work abroad also?

In the hands of the right overseas licenses, he claims, technology enables penetration of foreign markets without diverting capital, or management and engineering talent.

The format for making such exports feasible, Lang feels, is through the concept of the Small Business Export Trade Corporation. Each SBETC would handle the exports of at least five manufacturers at its own risk and expense.

To encourage formation of SBETCs, special tax benefits would be offered, in addition to the 50 per cent tax deferral on profits permitted to DISCs.

He has made his thoughts known to the Commerce Department and is now working on details of a bill that he hopes will attract congressional interest.

Will Ask for Merger

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — State Sen. Q. Byrum Hurst of Hot Springs said Thursday that if he wins the May 30 Democratic primary he will ask Gov. Dale Bumpers to issue an order staying the merger of the University of Arkansas and Arkansas AMIN.

Hurst is competing with Bumpers for the Democratic nomination for governor, as are state Rep. George Davis of Horatio and Les Gibbs of North Little Rock.

Hurst said he was among those who voted in 1971 against the merger, which takes effect July 1.

He said the act would "merge the college into oblivion."

Hurst said the school should remain predominantly black. Hurst made the statements during the taping of Evaluation '72, a television program, which will be shown Sunday on KAIT-TV in Jonesboro.

Asked about his sponsoring a bill to legalize gambling in 1967, Hurst said he sponsored the bill because the majority of his constituents in Garland County favored legalized gambling.

However, he said since the majority of the voters in the state oppose legalized gambling, he said if he becomes governor he will not attempt to revive the move to make gambling legal.

I will never sponsor a bill for legalized gambling as long as I am a governor," he said. He said he would be just as dedicated as a statewide office-holder as he had been as a state senator.

He said his father was pastor of a church and neither he nor his father was a gambler.

Enemy Troops Continue to Advance

By GEORGE ESPER

Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Enemy troops firing tear gas, rockets and mortars wrecked a South Vietnamese brigade headquarters defending the central highlands capital of Pleiku today, inflicting heavy casualties on government forces and killing an American adviser during hand-to-hand fighting.

Associated Press correspondent David J. Paine reported from Fire Base 42—on contested Highway 14 about seven miles north of Pleiku—that well after daylight smoke was still pouring from the command post bunker which was a main target of the rocket and sapper attack and from other bunkers and positions which had been badly hit.

The Saigon command announced 80 government defenders were killed or wounded in the fire base attack. Field reports said there were at least 27 dead among the casualties. Several artillery pieces also were destroyed by the rampaging sappers.

Maj. Michael Haynes, 35, an American adviser from Columbus, Ga., who survived the attack, told Paine the defenders counted 36 enemy dead inside the base and picked up 22 of their weapons.

Haynes said the American adviser was killed in the command bunker by shrapnel.

The South Vietnamese attempt to reopen the vital 25-mile Highway 14 supply line between Pleiku and Kontum appeared to have collapsed. South Vietnamese infantrymen were driven off the Chu Pao Mountain which dominates the highway at a point seven miles south of Kontum after a day of heavy fighting.

A small fight broke out a bare two miles northwest of Kontum City, said to be an objective of the enemy offensive.

On the northern front, field reports said Soviet-built 130mm artillery guns with a range of 17 miles had been spotted within striking distance of the old imperial capital of Hue, expected to be North Vietnam's next major northern target.

U. S. fighter-bombers knocked out three of the big guns. But fighting also was reported near Fire Base Birmingham.

Man's Memory is the Magic Baton of Life

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Every man holds a magic baton in his hand.

It is called memory. With it he can dismiss fears of the future and calm the turbulence of today by restoring and enjoying the serenity of a past time. It is perhaps only by the reassurance that memory provides us that human beings are able to endure this world with the fortitude we do.

You've got a lot to conjure up if you can look back and remember when—Only an exhibitionist changed his underwear more than once a week.

More corn was popped at home over the kitchen stove than in electric machines in the lobbies of movie houses.

One of the nice things about being born into a small family was that a hungry kid usually could have seconds at dinner. In a large family a boy who didn't put enough on his plate to satisfy him at the first pass-around was out of luck.

The straw boss in the factory always gave you a lighter work load if you both played on the company baseball team on Sundays.

A husband didn't necessarily wind up in the divorce courts if he told his wife that a woman's place was in the kitchen. But, all in all, women really ruled the roost in those days.

As they do now, but they did it better.

Those were the days—remember?

LAMAR, Colo. (AP) — For 11 of his 23 years Manuel Rodriguez has toiled for little pay in other men's fields as a migrant farm hand.

His wife, Erlinda, has worked the fields, too. And their two young daughters have tagged along.

Now, Rodriguez wants out of the fields. He wants to settle down and establish a permanent home for his family.

A unique educational program designed especially for people like Manuel and Erlinda is opening the way here at Lamar Community College.

Manual wants to become an auto mechanic. Erlinda is learning cosmetology.

"The program has given me new hope," Rodriguez said. "After a year of school I think I can get out of the fields."

Rodriguez, who speaks little English, has been working on farms in Greeley, Colo., and Eagle Pass, Tex., since he was 12. He dropped out of school after the fourth grade to help his older brother support their mother and nine other brothers and sisters.

And the couple is no exception. Seventy per cent of the 82 persons enrolled, according to program coordinator Anthony Valdez, have no more than the equivalent of a fourth grade education. Some of them speak as little as 100 words of English.

But all have one goal to get out of the fields.

"The demand for these agricultural workers is declining," explained Valdez, "so we are trying to give these people skilled training so they can settle and become community-participating individuals."

After this first success Mrs. Lira decided to start a "kind of clandestine agency" to distribute unwanted babies to childless couples. Mrs. Lira who lives in Recife, Brazil's second largest city, started by telling people to inform unwed mothers that she would deliver their unwanted babies to good foster parents. Since then, she says, she has placed eight babies with couples screened by her and a few friends.

Hasn't Given Up

By WALTER MEARS

AP Political Writer

HILTON HEAD, S.C. (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie is considering a series of national television appearances, if he can raise the money and buy the time, as he seeks to resurrect his Democratic presidential campaign.

The Maine senator said the appearances would offer a way to appeal past the primary elections, which he has quit, and seek to keep his name and ideas before the delegates who will decide who challenges President Nixon on Nov. 7.

"I have taken myself out of the primaries; I have not taken myself out of contention," Muskie said at his rented seaside villa in this golfing resort.

Muskie said he couldn't estimate how many more nominating votes he might be able to get without participating in the primaries, or how many he would need to rebuild his battered candidacy in a divided Democratic convention.

With Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey and George McGovern and Gov. George C. Wallace all doing primary election battle while Muskie retreated to a week's golfing holiday, that appeared to be an understatement of the odds against the one-time front runner.

Muskie said he couldn't guess at his chances.

But he said it was clear to him "there will not be a first ballot nomination" at the Miami Beach convention. He said that would leave a third situation in which he could fashion a comeback after primary delegate commitments lapse. "Nothing is predictable," he said. "Eight weeks ago we would have predicted where I'd be now."

He said he believed the primaries now are "likely to be a series of setbacks" since his comeback strategy is based on a divided convention.

The past eight weeks Muskie, from a national standpoint, has been a series of setbacks. He lost to McGovern in the New Hampshire primary, and he was defeated in the Iowa caucus.

He said he believed the primaries now are "likely to be a series of setbacks" since his comeback strategy is based on a divided convention.

Hijack Plane Bound For Cuba

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A pistol-wielding hijacker, who railed against U.S. involvement in Indochina, forced a Western Airlines 737 jetliner with 61 persons aboard to carry him toward Cuba today.

The plane landed at Tampa at 5:47 a.m. EDT for refueling, the airline announced.

The 6-foot, 200-pound hijacker took over the plane Friday en route from Salt Lake City to Los Angeles, where he let 11 passengers off and first asked to be taken to Hanoi, North Vietnam, then decided on Cuba instead. The plane flew to Dallas and was refueled and given a fresh crew before leaving today for Tampa.

The gunman claimed in a note he delivered in Los Angeles that the hijacking was the work of "several heavily armed members of the anti-imperialist movement" who were threatening additional hijackings if U.S. military intervention in Indochina continues, but Western officials said they believed only one person was actively involved in the hijack.

A Western spokesman said his note further threatened: "The skies of America will not be safe again until the U.S. government ceases its aggression against the people of Indochina."

The aircraft arrived in Dallas at 12:17 a.m. CDT and was refueled about the time a new crew arrived from Los Angeles at about 1:30 a.m. The gunman ordered 70 meals put aboard the plane for the 64 passengers and six crewmen. He was described as "nervous and confused."

lack of money and results. Muskie won the New Hampshire and Illinois primaries, lost in Florida, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Wisconsin.

"I've had a couple of guys who are capable of contributing talking about supporting a national television effort and that's much cheaper than primaries," Muskie said. "You can do it, one network, if you can get a network, would be about $60,000."

On other points in an interview Muskie said: He believes that McGovern now is moving toward the center of the Democratic party.

He thinks Sen. Edward M. Kennedy will remain out of the presidential race.

He has given "no thought at all" to what his personal political future will be if he does not win the nomination.

Boswell Critical of Opponent

BRYANT, Ark. (AP) — Ted Boswell of Byrant called Sen. John I. McClellan, D-Ark., Thursday a man who "looks backward and not forward."

Boswell, one of three Democrats opposing McClellan's bid for re-election in the May 30 primary, said in a speech McClellan "lives in a world of status quo."

He follows theories and premises that prevailed a half century ago," Boswell said. "He does nothing to remove the causes of our troubles and problems."

The Bryant lawyer also said that although McClellan labels himself as a "law-and-order" man, "he ignores the causes of crime."

Although he has great power to conduct investigations, Boswell said, he ignores, in his conduct of law and order, "the fact that some criminal offenders are rehabilitated and there are some other causes of crime."

He said he believed the primaries now are "likely to be a series of setbacks" since his comeback strategy is based on a divided convention.

Plant Herbs

Near Kitchen

By Sheila & Allan Swenson

You can really spice your living this year with herbs, naturally.

Only a few plants are needed. And two firms offer herb gardens that feature convenience, ease of planting and a good assurance of success: Plant Oddities in Basking Ridge, N.J., and Gourmet Herb Garden, Chicago, Ill. (G. Ball Co.)

Try herbs. They'll awaken the sleepiest of appetites.

Choose a spot near the kitchen. That way you'll find it easier to use herbs more often. Assure yourself of a dequate sun. You can improve soil with ample manure, leaf mold or composted humus, tilled or dug under to a depth of 8-10 inches.

Herb gardens are perpetual, so it pays to prepare their appointed place well. You can enjoy herbs even with a window sill garden. Many people do and it is quite easy.

An old wagon wheel, a checkerboard of stepping stones, or a simple border under the kitchen window will do if sun and drainage are right. Avoid downspouts. Watch for shade if too close to a porch, fence or neighbor's home.

Chives, dill, sage, sweet basil, rosemary and thyme are basic herb starter plants. Care of these is reasonably easy. Regular mulching with composted leaves, manure and top-dressing each year is advised.

Cultivation is as simple as for flowers and vegetables, according to facts from "The Practical Book of Organic Gardening." Sound, basic gardening principles apply.

Consider the rewards. Chives yield mild onion flavor chopped in soups, sauces or stews. Sage enhances poultry, sausage, meats and fillings.

Thyme's aroma seasons meats, soups, dressings or stews. Rosemary lends zest to sauces and meats. Dill seeds and leaves are a pickling basic. Basil, marjoram and others to suit your inclination can truly add new spice to your life. Go herbs, organically, this year.

The camel will take in one drinking as much as 25 gallons of water in a few minutes.

Idaho potatoes and lamb shanks are base for Greek stefado or stew

Greek Stefado: a Different Stew

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

A dinner-in-one-dish is a staple in almost any country. Each has a favorite stew with meat and potatoes simmered in a savory tenderizing liquid. A different stew is the Greek stefado. It has a sharp tomato wine sauce with bay and lemon, a far cry from ordinary stew gravy. Another taste change is the use of a handful of almonds and feta cheese. And Idaho baking potatoes add their own texture. Stew meat varies in price and quality. For this stefado, select the shank of veal or lamb. The price is right, the flavor dependable and the shank bone adds its own flavor as a good beef bone should

GREEK STEFADO
2 pounds small Idaho potatoes, fresh or frozen
2 cups canned tomatoes
1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste
1/4 cup red wine
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 teaspoons salt
4 pounds veal shanks or lamb, sliced through bone
1/4 cup olive oil
1 pound small boiling onions
3 bay leaves
3-inch strip lemon peel

1/2 cup blanched almonds or pecans
1/4 pound Greek feta or other light cheese such as Monterey Jack

Peel potatoes and slice in half lengthwise. Blend tomatoes, tomato paste, wine, vinegar and salt. Brown meat in heavy pan on all sides while you brown potatoes and onions. Return meat to braising pot with vegetables, sauce, bay leaves and lemon peel. Cover tightly and simmer 1 1/2 hours until meat is tender. Add nuts and crumble cheese over sauce. Continue cooking until cheese melts slightly and blends with sauce. Makes 6 servings.

Demonstrations Spring Eternal

By ERNESTINE GUGLIELMO

SPRING FEVER—Spring is in the air. You can tell by the smell of tear gas, the sounds of crashing glass from smashed windows and rocks thinking against riot helmets on campuses across the country.

Spring brings back the robin and the antiwar movement all in one warm breath. The national student strike was not called because of nice weather, but, this time, because President Nixon resumed U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

But whatever the specific causes each year, spring is becoming the traditional time for campus demonstrations.

AN AUTHORITATIVE STATEMENT Critic who has been knocking Allen Klein's intentions for his Bangladesh concert have been temporarily quelled by the official result of an investigation made by the office of the New York State attorney general.

Allen Klein, who became the target of attack about shady dealings with concert funds asked that the investigation be held.

So the inquiry disproved recent assertions that Klein played by disclosing that there was "no evidence of any impropriety."

SCHOOL SPIRIT—Where has all the school spirit gone? Fading into thumbworn scrapbooks with pictures of homecoming queens, high school proms and float parades, school spirit is now a thing of the past.

There was an item in the Okanogan, Wash., high school newspaper announcing "no prom this year." The students from the junior class voted against it because they felt formal dances were meaningless, there weren't too many people planning on attending and fewer who were willing to work on it. Anyone reared on The Ozzy and Harriet Show fondly remembers the painstaking pleasure Rickie and Dave took in such events. Where's all the vim, dash and energy? Hopefully going into more important things.

LOVE LETTERS—Vacation time is a time when many people have a chance to express their feelings. Love letters are a good way to do this. They are a good way to express your feelings for someone you love. They are a good way to express your feelings for someone you love.

MAKING THE TOWN—The Allman Brothers' whose recent album "Eat a Peach" is way up on the charts are going into real estate. They've bought 100 acres of land outside of Macon, Ga., and are planning to turn it into a new town complete with mayor, sheriff and other elected officials.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bittel

Thoughts Of A Young Married

DEAR HELEN AND SUE

You asked a question recently: "If you had lived with your mate two years on a 'trial' basis, would you honestly consider a full time marriage?"

Well, maybe the majority of people vaguely regret their vows, but not us! We married "dangerously" young (I was 17, Hank 20). After five years, we're still tremendously in love—and our three children have deepened that love, in spite of what these "moderns" spout about babies wrecking married bliss.

It is a mystery to me how two people can be so in love one moment that they can't live without each other, and then six months after the ceremony, start wondering why in the world they did it. Perhaps if they tried serious talk along with the sweet stuff, their marriages would have longer runs.

Many young people are only in love with the romantic half and not the tired grumpy half that grows, "Why don't you let me get some sleep?"

When my brother, aged 18 and quite immature, thought of getting married, I, from my sage, five-year pinnacle of experience, offered advice. He probably won't pay much heed.

WIN AT BRIDGE

bridge columnists union is entitled to his stock of trick hands. The stock is limited, so that all columnists use these same trick hands whenever the spirit moves them.

These trick hands don't have to appear at all complicated. Take today's hand as an example. It looks easy enough. South makes the obvious play of letting the spade lead come around to his king. Then he looks over the hand carefully and sees that, if he lays down the ace of trumps, he will guard against the only danger to the success of his contract, which is to find all four trumps in one hand.

So he lays down the ace of trumps and is pleased with his forethought. West does hold all four trumps.

Several minutes later he is less pleased because he can't collect 10 tricks. He can lead a trump to dummy's nine at the next trick. Then he can play three rounds of diamonds and ruff the third one with dummy's last low trump. Next he cashes dummy's king of trumps and would be home free if he could only find some way to get back to his own hand to pick up that pesky jack of trumps that is still left in the West hand.

Where did South go wrong? If he had stopped to think before playing low from dummy at trick one, he would have seen the danger of four trumps in the West hand and the possible need for an extra entry to his own hand. Then he would have won the first trick with dummy's ace of spades, led a trump to his ace and eventually made the game.

but if you think of it, you readers might hear it is

BEFORE YOU LEAP—

If anything was ever earned, it's happiness in marriage. Heaven knows, no one lays marital bliss in your lap.

You work for it from the time you wake up in the morning until you finally get to sleep at night.

You take the bitter with the sweet and whether you like it or not doesn't matter really, because now you're married and that's that!

And don't think all your problems will disappear just by making love.

Because more often than not you don't lighten the load, you add to it.

While I'm at it, here's something else to think about:

Children, whether you plan them or not, take up the same amount of effort.

And once they're here, your time is no longer your own.

They consume your days, your energy, and usually your patience.

And you find that almost everything you do or don't get to do is either for them or because of them.

Sometimes you wish to yourself you had never had them and you wonder to yourself what in the world you're doing here.

Page Three

But no matter what you think or feel, you ARE here so you must make the best of it.

Anyone who tells you marriage is simple is either crazy or never at home.

Because no matter how much you love the person you live with, it's sometimes nearly impossible to live with the person you love — PEGGY DEAR PEGGY:

Your good letter (especially the last sentence) brings up a point we have mentioned often: If couples would seek—and heed marriage counseling BEFORE the ceremony, they'd have much less need for it afterwards. —HELEN AND SUE

(GOT A PROBLEM? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bittel or both, in care of this newspaper, if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.)

Sneaker Compromise

Sneakers are hardly high fashion, but they are practical for days in the country or for shopping in town. A fashion-wise compromise we like are rubber-soled shoes with some style. They combine the comfort of sneakers with up-to-date fashion accents. They go anywhere and treat your feet gently.

Summer Shades

Lip tints and nail polish now come in warm, earthy tones and in vibrant, sun tones. For summer, they blend perfectly with bright skies and with the warm colors of summer clothes. For women who long to try these new shades, summer may be the best time.

ASTRO*GRAPH

BY BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Saturday, May 6 1972

In general: Large social gatherings promise to be exceptionally stimulating. Political discussion is a bomb with a short fuse. Words to live by today: ENJOY and EVALUATE.

ASTRO*GRAPH divides your horoscope into 6 sections. Use the letters and numbers under your sign. Numbers describe today's influences. Letters give the section. Circled number evaluates your hidden aspects.

ARIES (Mar 21-Apr 19)	LEO (Jul 22-Aug 23)	SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22-Dec 21)

each aspect

Add your 6 numbers to the circled number found under your sign. Total will describe your overall day.

40-50 You're a fine catalyst for the group

31-39 Get out and mix

20-30 Don't overindulge in your interests

Plunge Into Evening

The days of the casual, "fun" evening dress may be numbered. As part of the nostalgia mood, formal wear is taking its cues from the 1930s and 40s when velvet, chiffon, sequins and silk were king. Planning the k-lines and backs around as do self-chignon ruffles.

Narrow Belts

Wide, wide belts that have been top fashion accessories for the past few seasons seem to be shrinking from the fashion scene. In their place are narrow, waist-hugging belts that are anywhere from a half-inch to two inches in width.

Study Being Made

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The acting director of the Division of Soil and Water Resources will represent Arkansas at a meeting in Memphis next Tuesday to discuss development and related land resources in the lower Mississippi River Valley for the next 50 years. He is John P. Saxton. The meeting is part of a study being made to provide a broad guide for the best use of water and land to meet human needs. The study includes projected development and growth of the valley area.

Board Approves Expansion

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The executive committee of the state Pollution Control and Ecology Commission has approved an expansion to a Hot Springs hospital. The five-member board approved a 17-bed expansion for St. Joseph's Hospital of Hot Springs. The full commission will consider the request at its May 26 meeting.

Approval of the expansion by the commission was necessary because of a 1970 commission order barring new connections to the Hot Springs sewer system until necessary repairs are made to existing water and sewage treatment systems.

Birds Do More Than Just Sing

By Sheila & Allan Swenson

Bring back the birds and watch the insects disappear. Birds are your most important allies for insect control naturally and they can fill your garden with flashing color and colorful songs. Old Mother Nature knows what she's doing. Most songbirds are insectivorous. They eat insects by the millions. Different species eat different types of bugs, of course, so concentrate on attracting those who do the most efficient job.

A swallow can devour a thousand insects each day. Wrens love hundreds of caterpillars and assorted pests. Flycatchers and swifts are mosquito-control experts. Larks, thrashers, catbirds pray on grasshoppers, worms, caterpillars and assorted chewing and sucking insects. Purple Martins, unique in their love for man-made apartment birdhouses, can keep a garden clear of insects all season.

Yes, you can put the welcome mat out in several ways. Bird houses, feeding stations, watering and bathing spots are important. Equally essential is an encouraging natural habitat. Hedges, brush piles, wilderness corners encourage birds to frequent your home grounds.

Although the seeds and nectar-eating birds also sample berries, they prefer tart or sour-type fruit. Sweet berries are seldom bothered by birds. Nylon netting will protect the sour cherries or other berries effectively and is reusable for years.

When you landscape, keep birds in mind. The National Audubon Society has lists of trees and shrubs that provide special attractions for various species of birds. Plantings around feeders and bird baths give your flying friends protection and privacy at bath time, too. Consider their nesting needs. Robins, thrushes, phoebes, swallows all use mud in nest building. They can get their building supplies if you water the garden regularly.

Wrens, bluebirds, juncos, nuthatches use old wool, hair, twine, similar materials. Place some yarn bits and pieces of cloth out of the way in bushes for them.

His Desire Was Just Pure Gold

By GREG HEBERLEIN
Seattle Times Sports Writer
Written for The Associated Press

LESTER, Wash. (AP) — The wooden hurdles are homemade, the sand in the long jump pit came from a nearby river, but the desire of the high school athletes in this isolated Cascade Mountain community is pure gold.

Lester, once a prime whistle stop on a rail line cutting through Stampede Pass in the Cascade Mountains, now is surrounded by a port of Tacoma watershed. To keep pollution at a minimum, living here is discouraged by port officials.

The population is about 100 persons, including Tom Wilson, 25, who brought to his first teaching post a love of athletics.

Circumstances, however, limit the scope of Wilson's activities.

"If I had 10 boys," said Wilson, one of the high school's two teachers, "we'd have eight-man football."

But Lester doesn't have 10 boys, so Wilson has concentrated on track. He has nine of the school's 13 students competing for him—five girls.

"One not out for the team, he said, 'is 24 years old so she's not eligible. Another is pregnant and married. Only one boy and one girl are not participating."

Winter snows cut Lester off from the rest of the world, and driving a 30-mile road of potholes isn't much fun at any time. But transportation was only one of the problems Wilson had to overcome.

There were no facilities when Wilson decided on the track program, so team members pitched in to prepare the field.

A 220-yard grass track was staked out, starting blocks were made from 2-by-4s and nailed into the ground, and four makeshift hurdles were put together.

When sophomore John Jewett long jumped 16 feet in Lester's first meet, the team decided to build a pit.

"For punishment," said Wilson, "we'd give the school kids a chance of taking a swat or moving out a wheel load of rocks. Then we borrowed a pickup truck went up to a bar on the river and brought back some sand."

Lester doesn't have an eight-pound ball so Laura Garriss, senior shotputter, has to use the boys' 12-pounder. And the team doesn't even have a working stopwatch.

"It broke so often," Wilson said, "we decided not to repair it anymore." So he uses a wristwatch with a second hand.

Even so, sprinter Dzindra "Diz" Dumpis has qualified for the girls' state meet. None of the boys have qualified as yet.

His main worry, however, is Lester's mercenary population. "It's like a roller coaster, up and down," Wilson said. "But I'd still go ahead even if we had only one boy."

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Tom Reynolds, one of the top receivers in the nation last year while playing at San Diego State, has signed a multi-year contract with the New England Patriots of the National Football League.

Reynolds was New England's top pick in this year's college draft, being selected in the second round.

Lakers Beat Knicks in Overtime

NEW YORK (AP) — "If New York had won, everybody would have been talking about what a great game Bill Bradley played," said Gail Goodrich of the Los Angeles Lakers.

"But they didn't," he said, pausing to savor the moment, then adding, "We did."

And by beating the Knicks 116-111 in overtime Friday night in Madison Square Garden, the Lakers, long frustrated trying for supremacy in the National Basketball Association, moved within a step of finally wearing the crown that has slipped from their grasp since 1954.

That was the year they last won the championship—only back then they were known as the Minneapolis Lakers. In 1960 they moved to Los Angeles. Seven times since then they have made it to the finals. And seven times they have been thwarted, the last time in 1970 by the Knicks.

This time, however, they appear destined to win it all. They lead the best-of-seven series 3-1 and only an outright miracle can keep them from the title.

They'll have their first shot at it Sunday night in Los Angeles.

"I'm not ready to celebrate yet," said Jim McMillian, who scored 23 points Friday night, including six on a trio of jump shots that had New York playing catch-up virtually throughout the overtime. "If I try to celebrate now, then I'll relax too much for the next game in Los Angeles."

And Jerry West, who hit 28 to lead all scorers, added: "I'm anxious to play that next game."

Bradley scored 26 to top the Knicks. Two of his baskets, a pair of jumpers in a 22-second span, pulled New York into a 111-111 tie with 1:35 remaining in overtime.

But 20 seconds later, West's two free throws put the Lakers on top for good, then they wrapped it up as Goodrich sank a field goal and free throw.

New York's other pro basketball entry, the Nets of the American Basketball Association, isn't in such a precarious position.

The Nets, winners of the East Division championship, went after the Western titleholders, the Indiana Pacers, today in Bloomington, Ind., in the opener of their best-of-seven series.

Jerry Lucas added 25 points—most of them on his patented bombs from beyond the top of the key—and Walt Frazier scored 24 for the Knicks, including a tip-in of Dave DeBusschere's shot with three seconds to go that sent the game into overtime.

It was a rough game throughout, "one of the most physical playoff games I've ever seen," said Lakers Coach Bill Sharman.

Wilt Chamberlain, who hauled down a game-high 24 rebounds and scored 12 points—eight of them in the opening minutes of the third period when New York threatened to pull away—played the final 10 minutes with five personal fouls.

Yes, Fans, You Too Could Be A Sports Announcer

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK (NEA) — He would talk back to the television announcers a lot when basketball games were on. He had questions that they didn't answer. Sometimes he protested that they were insulting his intelligence, or giving faulty information. Other times they bored him stiff.

One time recently he saw a halftime interview in which the commentator called a basketball player by the wrong name and asked him wrong questions about the place he was from.

Bob Goldsholl sat on the edge of his couch, puffing heatedly on his pipe. And with characteristic aplomb asked, "Could I do worse?"

Then one night in February he was watching a New York Nets game and found that Marty Glickman was Gibsonless. That is, Glickman was doing the game alone because Bob Gibson, his "color man," had gone off to spring training with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Goldsholl's antennae quivered. His opportunity, Goldsholl works in sales at WNEW radio in Manhattan. He knows Glickman, who is that station's sports director. Goldsholl had done some tapes for Glickman for a chance. Glickman, who knew he could keep two tight hands on the mike if he needed, said, well, uh, okay, but you've got to ask the Channel 11 producer Don Carney.

So one afternoon Goldsholl dropped down from the sky and into the office of the unexpected Carney. Goldsholl wore his "sincere" blue suit ("I didn't want him to think I was a mad man") and asked for just one shot, one night. Goldsholl promised he wouldn't embarrass Carney. Okay, was the surprised response. But no salary for the trial.

Goldsholl had two selling points. First, he was not just another big-name athlete trading on his name, even though he played two months in 1956 for the Hastings (Neb.) Class D baseball team. He had hopes then of becoming the right-handed Sandy Koufax. But Goldsholl was severed from the squad in rather indecent haste.

"The manager was a bigot," says Goldsholl today. "He didn't like people with no talent."

Goldsholl also had a basketball background as a sub on some very bumbling NYU teams. "I sat on some of the best benches in the league," says a defensive Goldsholl.

And, Goldsholl told Carney, he retains a physical as well as analytical interest in basketball. Goldsholl plays regularly at the Grand Central YMCA, and is the organizer and starting guard on a Y team which, to the shock and chagrin of the players, was recently described in a New York Post column by Larry Merchant as "a scurvy bunch of wheezers."

"But I have a feel for the game and I think I can communicate it," said Goldsholl. "You don't have to be Rick Barry to feel the tension in a game—you can feel it in half court at the Y, too."

And there are millions of guys like me who play at a Y or a community center who know and love the game but who get little satisfaction from listening to someone like a Chris Schenkel who has a beautiful voice but little insight into the sport.

"And we don't want to hear a halftime interviewer ask a player 'What did you think of the first half?' We want 'How come your last break isn't working?'"

Goldsholl, dark-haired, 6-foot-2, 170, is not too badly built and not at all the fully pepped-up pre-game show at 6:55 p.m. with Glickman that first night. He sat back around the 10:30 show when he was asked, "Well, not exactly signed."

I just show up for each game," he says. "Nobody has the right to come."

Reggie Jackson on Oakland Holdout Some A's Are Blue About Vida

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK (NEA) — Reggie Jackson, unlike some of his Oakland A's teammates, is not bitter toward Vida Blue or Vida Blue's lawyer, Robert Gerst.

"I take Vida's not being here as a fact of life," said Jackson, leaning against the batting cage. "Like the sky is blue, no changing that." (And no pun intended.)

"Some players think that with Vida holding out it may cost each player five or six thousand dollars in play-off money. Maybe it has already. He won't pitch for at least a month. And if and when he does come back, he won't be ready right away, so that's more time. The division title could be lost by then."

Besides the money aspect, some of the other star players, like Jackson, have just that much more pressure put on them. Blue's slack must be taken up somewhere. "I hope it doesn't make a difference in my performance," said Jackson. "But it might."

Jackson views the Blue situation as bad for everyone involved, he said, "bad for Blue, bad for the A's, bad for the fans, bad for baseball in general."

Most of the players, said Jackson, believe Gerst has given Blue bad advice. Most believe Blue should sign for $50,000, the season salary owner Charlie Finley had offered. (Blue, the 22-year-old Cy Young and American League MVP winner, made $14,000 last season and is now asking for a reported $92,500.) "Very few players on this team think Finley is being unfair to Vida," said Jackson.

"You know, $50,000 for a second-year man is pretty good money," said Jackson. "And Blue can make at least that much in endorsements and outside stuff. I mean, I make about $20,000 a year outside of baseball. Vida, being Vida, could make at least double that."

"But you're not going to make it unless you play. That extra $20,000 would never come to me unless I was able to put that horsehide in the seats."

Jackson also said that, well, Vida also has the realistic responsibility of supporting his mother and six young brothers and sisters.

"The more money you have the easier it is to help out, obviously," said Jackson. "I know that my baseball earnings will allow my mother and father to retire earlier. And, thinking of this, I just have to accept some things that don't make me too happy."

"For example, most black players feel that white players make more money faster than blacks. Take me and Bobby Murcer. Murcer is a fine ballplayer and nice guy. I have nothing against him. But he has never done anything more on the field than I have. Yet he makes more money. I make in the neighborhood of $60,000. Murcer makes about $5,000 more. Why? He's white."

"Now, to understand Vida,

I think you have to understand where he comes from, and the fact that he is black. He's black through and through his heart."

"He's from Mansfield, Louisiana. You know what it's like for a black kid growing up in Louisiana? You're a nigger, get outta here!"

"Every black man, every black player has his fists up and only puts his hands in his pockets when the white man proves himself. And we know that when we walk into the executive's office high up there some place, that he's looking at us as a black man first. And he's going to offer us less than the white."

Jackson said that Blue is young, but mature and very aware. "Vida has the feeling of black pride," said Jackson. "And he is standing up for what he believes, the way Muhammad Ali and John Carlos have done. This is what people in the black community respect."

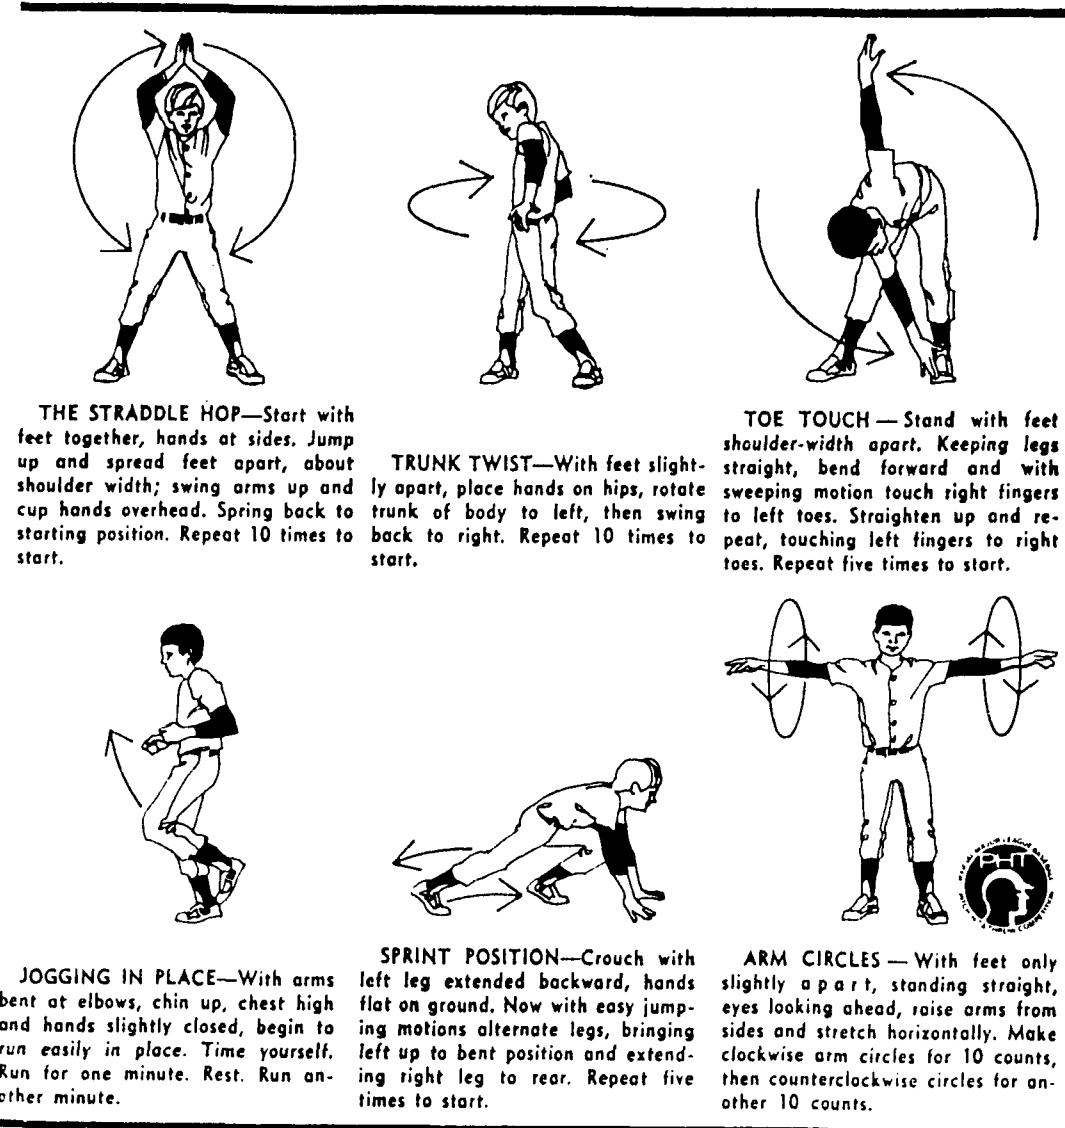

Jackson is also concerned about Blue's present emotional state.

"I've talked to him a few times, in person and on the phone," said Jackson. "He seems to be getting distant. He's not curt, but he's kind of, well, short. He won't let you get close to him. Maybe now he's not sure he's done the right thing. I don't know. He's very, very sensitive now."

"But I thought to myself, 'Vida, don't alienate me, man. I'm as good as you. And we're the same. We're ballplayers. We're black. I know how you feel.'"

Baseball Tips

Warm-up Exercises

One of the most important lessons that every young athlete must learn is that he cannot succeed on natural ability alone.

He must exercise and practice. Regular exercise, on a daily basis, will make him stronger and it should come before every game to prepare him for the strain of competition, make him more alert and reduce the possibility of injury or soreness.

Illustrated here are warm-up exercises designed for participants in the Official Major League Baseball Pitch, Hit and Throw Competition (PH&T), a nationwide program open to all boys 9 through 12.

For baseball players, strong leg muscles are the most important of all the body muscles. And the key to strong leg muscles is running.

MILWAUKEE MUSCLE
The Boston Celtics have won more NBA championships than any other team but the Milwaukee Bucks have the best record in play-off competition, winning 17 of 24 games for a .708 percentage. The Celtics are 119-78, a .604 mark good enough for second place.
